State Income Tax Methods.

The Charleston News & Courier says:

"The South Carolina at the present time some of our most important industries are on the point of leaving the State and locating elsewhere. The terms of the State income tax in this State and the manner of the enforcement of this tax are driving them to other and friendlier Commonwealths.

"This is not bluff. It is the absolute fact. These concerns are required to pay an income tax in this State on income from plants which they conduct in other States. They feel that it would pay them to make their headquarters in the States where their other plants are and conduct their operations in South Carolina as branches of their main business, if at all.

"There is resentment, too, at the needless toll of time and effort which they are called upon to pay under the State income tax system. What they cannot understand, at The News and Courier has pointed out repeatedly, is why one income tax return could not be made to do for both the Federal and State governments. This affidavit should also show, as one business man who has been compelled to give an outline amount of study to the question says, what taxes were paid during the current year for back taxes since 1921, assessed by the Government, and also any refunds made by the Federal government for the same period. As a check against this affidavit, suggests our correspondent, the income tax returns are now open do any State official for inspection and one man could easily check up all returns at Columbia, thus eliminating an enormous expense in unnecessary clerical hire, traveling expenses, and inconvenience to the taxpayer by field agents.

Is there any reason in the world why this plan of collecting the State income tax should not be adopted in South Carolina? Any reason, we mean, beyond the fact that the recent plan provides more and more jobs every year for a lot of takers who once they get their names on the public payroll feel that the public ought to support them for life?"
